will in the least be Rs 483 (exclusive of initial cost for furniture on 1st) per annum, in addition to the pay of the Hospital assistant — Rs 300 per annum, of the last grade — payable from the State funds. The cost of a Vaidya-sala is Rs 250, a year — now incurred by the institution at Royalpad — and the cost of a dispensary is nearly double that of a Vaidyasala.

9 Even in Head Quarter towns where exist Vaidyasalas in addition to dispensaries — eg Shimoga and Chikmagalur and therefore Vaidyasalas with certificated physicians appear to be more economical & equally popular.

The District Board's preference for a dispensary at Chelur seems to be worthy of approval —

Chelur is a more important place than Irugampalli and a dispensary at Chelur is certainly more beneficial than a Vaidya Sala at Irugampalli.

One wants a Dispensary at one place - The they is content with a Vydyasala at another - In the linked file I have preferred the former - But I have not objection to Vote for the latter if the 2nd Commr. also is in favour of the latter - He knows the Kolar Distt better thereof, I have the honor to submit herewith a Copy of the resolution of the District Board on the subject passed at the last meeting held on the 7th December 1907, and to state as follows:—

Prior to the receipt of the above petition, the inhabitants of the Chintamani Taluk having presented a petition to this office on the same subject, a report was called for from the late Sub Divisional Officer Kolar group of Taluks, who was of opinion that instead of a Vaidyasala at Dragampalli, the Hospital Assistant of Chintamani may be deputed to visit the villages in question once a week on Shandy days; but the Chintamani Taluk

Taluk Board are of opinion that a Vaidyasala at the said place may be opened with Madanapalli Lakshminaranappa as a pandit thereof on a Salary of Rs. 15 per mensem.

The Subject was thereupon discussed at the last District Board meeting held on the 7th December 1907 and it was resolved that instead of a Vaidyasala at Dragampalli, a regular Dispensary at Chelur in the Bagepalli Taluk, which by its Central position and close proximity to the Villages in question and also to Those in Bagepalli Taluk, is more necessary and useful and that arrangements be accordingly made
